Tsukioko Kogyo- Noh Theatercolor Woodblock Print

Reference:

MPD-005802
Description
Tsukioko Kogyo, Noh Theater color woodblock print, Circa 1897--1901, Series: Noganku Zue (Noh Plays), Publisher: Matsuki Heikichi.

Tsukioka Kogyo , sometimes called Sakamaki Kōgyo , (April 18, 1869 - February 25, 1927) was a Japanese artist of the Meiji period. He was a student and adopted son of Tsukioka Yoshitoshi, and also studied with Ogata Gekkō. Although Kōgyo sometimes painted other subjects, for most of his career he made pictures of Japanese noh theatre, either as large-scale paintings or colored woodblock prints. Many of the latter were published in series and sold as multi-volume sets. Some sets, such as Nōgaku zue, have been preserved as albums in their original bindings, including accordion-style bindings known as orihon, while other sets such as Nōga taikan, were issued in sewn bindings known as yamato toji. Although most bound sets belong to institutional collections, individual prints by Kōgyo can still be found through dealers specializing in Japanese prints.

Some of the museum collections of Kogyo include:

Walters Art Museum

Art Institute of Chicago

Chandler Williamson Gallery

Los Angeles County Museum of Art

Frick Art & Historical Center

University of Pittsburgh

Price:

$195.00

Main Image:

DetailsPeriod: 19th CENTURY
Category: ART

Condition: Good, 2 sm. wormholes in margins, unseen in matted image.

Dealer Ref: A 608

Dealer: 20th Century Collection.com

Phone: 215-539-0192

More InfoDesigner: Tsukioka Kōgyo

20th Century Collection