

American Art Deco Five Light Crystal Chandelier ca 1920

Reference:

Description

The Edwardian Period at the turn of the century had an eclectic mix of styles and designs. By looking at this fascinating chandelier, many of those eclectic styles and designs can be seen. This pressed glass fixture is rather a unique survivor of the 1920's and now has been restored to a very special fixture indeed.

While the body of the fixture is 1920 or so, the shade holders are more recent and the shades are a very outstanding recreation. All in all we believe that it all works together to give a superior light and definitely one that is hard to find.

This chandelier has been rewired to UL code and it is ready to grace a lovely home.

Each socket is rated for more than 100 watts, so a total of 500 watts can result giving significant light for most rooms.
