Description
This pair of American art deco table lamps was designed by Gilbert Rohde (1894 - 1944) for the Mutual Sunset Lamp Company, Brooklyn, New York in the 1930's. A four inch square base holds a vertical shaft and circle, all in brushed nickel. The base is horizontally divided in three parts...the 1930's speed motif. On each side of the central shaft clear one inch diameter solid clear glass tubes catch the light from the original milk glass diffuser. The beige linen type shades are new and the lamps have been rewired. The lamps are 23 ½ " tall and are in excellent original condition. Each lamp is marked "MSLC" (Mutual Sunset lamp company) and "4600" (the model number)
